Letters to The Editor

The Editor, News-Bulletin:

I have read with considerable misgivings several articles appearing in The News-Bulletin over a period of the last few weeks which I felt to be intemperate in their attacks. I refer to the articles condemning the Murray-Wagner-Dingell Bill and government interference in public affairs in general.

Even if all that was said were true, it seems to me that it was ill-said. Nothing is to be gained by expressions of virulent prejudice at a time when well-tempered intelligence is so necessary to the solution of our many problems. If the average citizen were unintelligent, if he acted from his emotions alone, if he sold his freedom for a quick solution of his problems, such articles would be the way to reach him. At it is, none of these things is true; and in a democracy, prejudice and un-intelligence is as dangerous as is freedom of speech in a dictatorship. Democracy may be slow, it's progress may be halting, it may make mistakes, but it moves inexorably toward the truth and the right. Hysterical blustering by any pressure groups will not delay its progress or influence for long its citizenry.

For instance: with regard to the medical provisions of the Murray-Wagner-Dingell Bill, I, as a citizen have not yet made up my mind. As I consider it, this is what concerns me: only two groups in the nation get adequate medical attention—the very poor and the very rich. The majority of Americans are in a deplorable state of general ill-health, as was proved by the high rejection rate of the army. Convinced that good health is necessary for a good democracy, I, as a citizen, am determined to see that we get it. This bill may not be the way, perhaps something entirely different is called for. Whichever may be the case, pressuring by the American Medical Association or the drug industry will but focus our attention on their failings and prejudice their cause. They have a right to be heard, certainly, but not to usurp the truth with hysteria.

Let us face national problems heroically, as befits us as heirs of our great American tradition. If we do, we need have no fear for our democracy. The world is in a crisis. It has grown too big for its britches and must be disciplined. Changes lie ahead which would take our breath away were they to come all at once; but, with democracy as a tool and a control, we can whip the problems in our time. Slow, steady, day-by-day intelligence does it; not prejudice and emotionalism, but balanced thought and a sense of responsibility.

Yours truly,
Paul Saunders
Marley, Illinois

Editor, News-Bulletin:

It is rumored that Bill Miller, Will County Game Warden, is on the trail of a Frankfort Village nimrod who, while hunting near town, made an error and shot a pheasant, which he no doubt mistook for a rabbit.

The usual cost of such a mistake runs around sixty dollars or 20 days in jail, or both.

Shooting pheasants out of season may prove an expensive pastime for the young man behind the shot gun.

—A Reader.

FARMERS AND LABORERS

WASHINGTON. — It gives no joy to issue storm warnings. But the price-wage turmoil of today may have equal or even greater repercussions next spring when farmers lose their food subsidies.

What most people don't realize is that the public is squarely in between two powerful, well-organized pressure groups, both with very conflicting interests, both sometimes taking a public-be-damned attitude. One is organized labor. The other is the farm organizations, which, while they can't strike, can and will exert effective pressure when subsidies are removed.

Both groups work against each other in the following manner: When labor raises wages in the cities, this sucks labor away from the farms. Whereupon the farmer has to raise farm wages in order to compete with the cities. This in turn increases his cost of production, forcing him to increase prices or go out of business.

At present, the farmer can't increase prices because of OPA. So the government, recognizing the injustice of his higher operating costs, gives him a subsidy. When this subsidy is removed, he will have to increase prices — unless operating costs are reduced. And the current strike wave is constantly forcing up the cost of labor.

All this operates in a vicious circle. For, the minute food prices go up, labor will come in for more wage increase, based upon the cost of living.

Organized labor, of course, can better take care of itself. But unorganized and unprotected are a great body of white-collar workers, unskilled labor, plus the middle-class business men who get squeezed in between. This is the group which is getting sorer and sorer at labor. There was a time when they were sympathetic, but not now. This is the red flag of public opinion which organized labor needs to watch.

U. S. MARES TO EUROPE

Biggest foreign purchase of horses since Mussolini drained the southwest for his Ethiopian transport divisions is now taking place in the middle west. UNRRA is buying 16,000 American mares for disposal in Greece, Yugoslavia, Poland and Czechoslovakia — countries from which the Nazis drove away most of the horse population.

The mares are being purchased under the supervision of the department of agriculture which has passed the job on to the Sparks-Norris horse and mule company in St. Louis, Owen Brothers in Memphis, and Dean Bowns and W. L. Elder in Des Moines. Average price paid by UNRRA to the dealer is $77 and $97.50 per head.

This has aroused criticism in the farm belt, because dealers are paying only $50 to $60 per horse, thus netting a profit of about $25 each. However, agriculture department officials defend prices on the ground that dealers take a risk on sick horses, accidents during shipment, etc.

The army paid an average of $165 per head for horses during the war, but was more particular, rejecting horses for scars and blemishes. Mares now being purchased must be three to eight years old, broken for both work and riding. They are being shipped overseas from Baltimore, New Orleans, Jersey City, and Portland, Me.

NOTE. — Tip-off to the fact that Mussolini was planning to conquer Ethiopia came two years before his war started when, in 1933-34, the Italians suddenly bought $342,798 worth of mules from Missouri, Arkansas and Texas.

ADMIRAL NIMITZ'S POINTS

Adm. Chester Nimitz, new chief of naval operations, was sitting in the navy building barber shop near a captain in the naval reserve.

The four-striper, exchanging pleasantries with the former U. S. commander in the Pacific, twice reminded his superior that he had sufficient points to get out of service, and seemed just as anxious to be separated as the average seaman first class.

Smiling mischievously, Nimitz replied, "I never thought I'd get enough points to get out of the Pacific."

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Those two one-time enemies, AFL's William Green and United Mine Workers' John L. Lewis, were seen, heads together, lunching at the Mayflower hotel here recently. "This may be an historic conference," Green remarked to a passing friend.

Says Congressman Smith of Wisconsin regarding a department of peace: "I would be in favor of spending as much for this type of program as we are spending for the military establishments today. I would like to see a secretary for peace within the cabinet." . . . Teachers' Digest has sent to 30,000 leading educators the following sage advice: "You may admire Russia or you may dislike her violently. No matter how you feel, one fact remains: If Russia and the U. S. agree, these two countries can assure the peace of the world."

TRUE TO A GREAT HERITAGE

LESSON TEXT: Deuteronomy 4:1, 32-40. MEMORY SELECTION: He hath made his wonderful works to be remembered.—Psalm 111:4.

A goodly heritage is the gift of God to his people. By faith they must enter into it and possess it. Thus they honor him who has promised, and they witness to all the earth that he is a great God and a loving heavenly Father. It magnifies his name to believe on his word and to act on his promises.

Israel, having failed God and plunged themselves into years of wandering by their unbelief when they just came up to the Promised Land, were now ready to go over Jordan and take the land.

A new generation had grown up, and for their instruction Moses rehearsed the history of the people, repeated the promises of God, and renewed their remembrance of his law. The book of Deuteronomy gives that "second law" — actually a review of what had been given before.

As they entered upon God's rich heritage for them they were admonished to

I. Harken to God's Law (v. 1).

To hearken means more than to hear and forget. It carries with it the giving of attention to what is heard with the purpose of doing something about it.

God's law, his statutes and judgments are for the good of his people. They are not designed to limit their freedom, but to provide the channels through which they shall be most free to live and to accomplish that which is good and noble and useful.

Two things were assured to Israel if they hearkened to the law of God. They would first of all "live." This does not mean only that they should escape death, but that they might enter into the fullness of life.

"The Bible teaches that we are free to choose between a high grade of life or a low grade, between a life which involves fellowship with God or a daily existence which means nothing more than the enjoyment of animal comforts and following our own willful ways" (Earl L. Douglass).

The second result of obeying God's law would be their going into and possessing the land which God gave them. There is victory and attainment, as well as blessed fellowship for the one who obeys God. That is true today as it was in the time of Moses.

II. Remember God's Love (vv. 32-40).

The loving mercies of God toward his people had revealed his infinite greatness and glory.

He revealed himself in the fire—and they might well have been consumed by it—yet he graciously spoke to them instead of destroying them. They were to recall, too, that he had done a mighty and wonderful thing in taking them out of the powerful hand of Egypt and making them into a people for his name.

Sad is the state of the soul of the man who has lost his sense of the miraculous. To live in the midst of the constant demonstration of God's power and his mercy, and to see and feel nothing but the commonplace touch of humdrum daily life, is to be blind and deaf—yes, to be dead spiritually.

Is he any less powerful today? Certainly not! He is still the God of the miraculous and nowhere is that divine energy more evident than in the spiritual life of man.

The wonders of God in creation were rehearsed for Israel. They learned of his care for his people. "But far more wonderful are the works of God in the new creation and his infinite care for his people redeemed from a ruined race, and made inheritors of eternal residence in the heavenly Canaan" (Hight C. Moore).

III. Depend on God's Promise (vv. 37-40).

The Promised Land was before them, but it was for them to go in and possess it. There were warfare and struggle ahead, mighty warlike peoples to overcome. Were they able for it? No, not in their own strength!

How were they to accomplish this formidable task? By counting on God. He had promised to drive out the nations now holding the land. He is a God not only in heaven, but also on earth (v. 39). The people who believe him may go forward expecting miracles to happen.

Obedience to God's law brings fellowship with the eternal and omnipotent One, and the confident assurance that he will bring victory and the full accomplishment of his will for the obedient believer.

That is as true now as ever. Yes, let's be accurate and say that it is more true than ever, for believers now are indwelt by the Holy Spirit of God who makes real in and through them all the grace and beauty and power of God.

To Save Money,
Mix Your Cough
Relief at Home

So Easy! No Cooking. Quick Relief.

Even if you're not interested in saving good money, you surely want a really effective relief for coughs due to colds. So try mixing it yourself, in your kitchen, and be ready for a surprise. It's so easy to mix, a child could do it. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking is needed. Or use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle. Then fill up with your syrup. This makes a pint—about four times as much for your money. It tastes good—children really like it. It lasts a family a long time, and never spoils. But what you'll like most is the way it takes right hold of a cough. It loosens the phlegm, soothes irritation, and helps clear the air passages. Eases soreness, and lets you sleep. You'll say you've never seen its superior. Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for its quick action on throat and bronchial irritations. Try it, and if you're not really delighted, your money will be refunded. —Adv.

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood. You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won countrywide approval than on something less favorably known. AN INNER SANCTUM MYSTERY
STARRING ARAB AND ANDY BLAKE WHO FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lt. Andy Blake and his wife, Arab, discovered a spy ring headed by a Mr. Jones. Followed to Andy's house by Jones' gang, Arab was taken prisoner, Andy escaped. Andy reported to the army, then was picked up by two of Jones' men and taken to the Jersey coast. In crossing to a small island, the boat was upset by Andy, who swam ashore. He found Paula and set her free. Jones made him a prisoner, Jones, realizing they must escape, then made plans to signal the Nazi submarine to send a rubber boat for them. Jones had a black light, that could signal the submarine and still not be seen from shore, but he wanted to radio Germany.

CHAPTER XVIII

I sneered, "The commander sees you coming out in the rubber boat and yells 'tricked! They are Americans in our boat! Ten rounds rapid fire!' Blam-blam-blam-blam—"

"Stop it!"

"That's just one way," I drawled. "There are a million ways he can take care of you."

He swung back to the set. His fingers jerked on the sending button.

"Chief!" Joey cried. "Don't get rattled! Don't let this guy upset you. Take it easy."

The blind glasses glared at Joey. The fat man's voice sounded as if he were yelling through a blanket. "Quiet!" he shouted. "Who do you work for? For me or Canaris? I begin to wonder. I have just ordered the commander to send in a boat now. We will get aboard before telling him anything. I will take over his radio. I have the authority."

He whirled back to the eyepiece, crouched at it. A message must be coming back. His fingers clutched and twisted at the legs of the tripod. At last he straightened, and gasped, "Schwein! He signals! Detectors picked up propeller beat quarter hour ago. Inshore patrol active. Unsafe send boat. Transmit information first." He bent to the sending button again.

Joey quavered, "Whatcha doing now, Chief?"

"There!" the fat man said. "I instructed him to stand by. Now we will see who gets the credit." He went to the short-wave transmitter, flipped switches.

"Chief!" Joey cried. "It ain't safe! They can pick up that radio stuff."

The fat man cursed at the stubbornly cold radio set. "A chance in a hundred," he muttered. "One destroyer cannot police the short-wave bands. It would take a dozen—what is wrong with this pig of a radio!" He peered over the panel, fumbled among tubes and wires and condensers. Then he walked very quietly to me. "The tube," he said.

I had to play this carefully. I could wreck everything by being suspiciously helpful. "What tube?"

"The tube you took from this set. You have not broken it because there is no glass. You did not have the window raised to throw it out. You have hidden it."

"I don't know what you're talking about."

"The tube," he said. His right hand clamped across my face, his thumb dug into the hollow under my right ear. He pressed, and said, "The tube."

"I don't know!" I yelled. "I don't know!" Rockets whizzed and burst in my head. Pain shrieked down every nerve in my body. I could feel it at the tips of my fingers, my toes. I had to take it a second longer. A second longer. It had to look good. It—"In the wastebasket!" I screamed.

He left me, and fumbled in the basket. I slumped. I had almost overdone things. A few seconds more would have fixed that ear for life. He found the tube and lifted it delicately and replaced it in the set.

Arab was crying. "Andy," she said, "Andy, did it hurt awful?"

I wet my lips. "It's O. K. now."

"Will . . . will it help them very much having the tube?"

"It doesn't matter," I said. "He'd get his news out either this way or the other. I just wanted to make things unpleasant for him if I could."

Tubes and dials glowed on the set, reflected gleefully on the fat man's face. "Yes," he said. "We will settle for that later, Renee!"

She whispered, "Yes?"

"Our friends out there may be worrying. I should have sent more than stand by. Signal them that I am getting the information in order and that it will take a number of minutes."

"I do not know how to signal them."

"Anybody can send. A long press on the button for a dash. A short press for a dot. It is plain international code. There is a handbook on my desk."

She slipped past my chair like a pale shadow, found the book, went to the tripod. Joey got her a flashlight. She masked the light with her hand, studied the international code, and began sending slowly, going back to the page for each new letter.

In front of the fat man the big radio set was warming up now. It purred like a giant cat. The fat man touched dials, clamped a receiver over his ears. His fingers tested the sending key. "Joey," he called.

"Here, Chief."

"The code book. Lower right-hand drawer." He flipped keys at Joey, and added, "Get the book, and paper and pencil. This cannot go in the clear. Encode it." He waited while Joey got the code book and writing materials, and then said, "The first sentence: Jones to Ullrich. Second sentence: For Himmeler only. Third sentence: Huge task forces sailed last three days from East Coast Ports of Embarkation. Fourth sentence: Objective absolutely confirmed French North Africa. Encode that. And quickly. There will be more."

"O. K., Chief."

The fat man's fingers had not stopped for a moment. He was sending a recognition signal. Dit-dah-dit . . . dah-dah. Dit-dah-dit . . . dah-dah.

I tried to picture the waves leaping out over the Atlantic in huge vertical zigzags, caroming back and forth between the earth's surface and the Heavenside layer forty miles up. Out on the Atlantic were Navy radio men waiting tensely just for this. Combing segments of the short-wave bands. Waiting for the whine of power in their ears and the crackle of an enemy message. I prayed that they wouldn't miss, prayed that the signal wouldn't leapfrog the waiting airdials.

Dit-dah-dit . . . dah-dah. Dit-dah-dit . . . dah-dah. He threw words at Joey now and then. Joey scribbled them down and then hunted through the secret code book for the right signal. Dit-dah-dit . . . dah-dah. Dit-dah-dit . . . dah-dah. It seemed to go on forever. Renee finished her chore and moved over to watch Joey encoding.

Suddenly there was a change. The fat man jerked upright. His sending hand stilled, quivering. He listened. He had been acknowledged. Far away in Germany they were ready for him. He ripped back a jerky stream of dots and dashes. His hand reached for the first sheet of the coded message.

Heat lightning flickered on the horizon to the northeast. My skin tingled. Heat lightning at thirty minutes to November? I sucked in my breath. It might have been four miles away. I would know in ten to fifteen seconds. I counted. Maybe I counted aloud, or maybe something in the way I strained forward registered with the group at the radio. They swung around, peered at me. I hardly noticed. They were just blurs in the dim room. I counted. Nine . . . ten . . . eleven . . . twelve—

Then it happened. Out on the sand bar two majestic cones of water foamed up into the night sky. Windows jumped in frames. Sound thudded at us. And I went nuts.

"They got a fix on us!" I screamed. "Come on, boys, pour it in! Lay it in their laps! You got the radio tagged! Let 'em have it!"

The fat man leaned over me, snarling something. I didn't care what. I rocked deliriously in the chair and howled up at him. "Watch this one, Jonesy. Get to the window and watch it. Open your mouth and they'll drop one in. Yeeehahoo! Right one zero. Eight eight hundred. Fire!"

He jerked around like a puppet on strings. Lightning glared again on the horizon. Black-powder lightning in Navy five-inchers. "On the way!" I shrieked. "Count it, you rats! Twelve seconds to live! One . . . two . . ."

I went on counting and raving half-forgotten artillery commands while the room turned into a madhouse. The fat man was rescuing his black-light set. He screamed orders. Orders to collect papers. To run to the powerhouse. I heard him howl at Joey to shoot us before leaving but I didn't give a hang. "Eight,"

I yelled. "Nine . . ." The fat man tumbled out through the door. His feet clattered on the stairs. "Eleven . . . twelve . . ."

Twin screeches rode the air overhead. The roof seemed to lift to meet them. Blaam! Glass jingled and the old house rocked and groaned like a schooner slamming onto a shoal.

"Hurry up, Joey," I chanted. "Hurry up. That was a hundred over. Hurry up. They got their bracket now. Left five. Eight seven hundred. Hurry up, Joey."

He was flopping around the room like a drunken rooster. He picked up things and dropped them. I chanted "Hurry up!" once more and then noticed Renee. She was standing motionless at the window, looking out to sea. Moonlight glided her face. For the first time she seemed to be calm, almost happy. The brief glow washed the horizon again.

"On the way," Renee said softly.

I took a deep breath and turned to Arab. In the dim room her hair seemed to glow like phosphorus. Her head was tilted, chin up. For a moment she and Renee could have been sisters. They faced the ocean almost eagerly, like lovely delicate figureheads on the old China clipper.

"Hold your hat," I said.

She smiled. "I'd rather hold your hand."

"I wish I could think of something deathless to say."

"I love you, Andy."

"And I love you."

"That's nice enough," she said contentedly.

She was still smiling at me when everything left go at the seams. The blast was too close, too stunning to be heard. Something pumped the air out of my lungs, picked me up chair and all, and slammed me back against the wall.

I lay there for a short time, dopey with concussion. My chest heaved, trying to force air to my lungs. At first I could only get a sip of air. I worked at it, got a little more . . . more . . . and then a big shuddering breath that put me back in circulation. The chair was kindling wood. I doubled my feet up to my bound hands and worked on the ankle knot. Either I was deaf or it was achingly quiet. Moonlight seeped in through shattered windows and torn wall. Dust drifted like spray; the dust of a generation, shaken from every cranny by the explosion.

"Andy. An-dy."

I tried to get my slow-motion thoughts in line. Arab was sitting near the door. The blast had skated her chair back fifteen feet without toppling it. I started toward her . . . and a ragged figure uncoiled from the floor and blocked my way. It was Joey. He jammed me against the wall. I tried to knee him but my legs wouldn't move fast enough. There was a smear of blood across his face. His jaw hung slackly. He tugged at something in his pocket.

"You been askin' for it," he mumbled. "You been askin'."

"Good old Joey," I said loudly.

"This is the kind of shooting you like, isn't it? This was the kind you had in Spain. Are you still putting out that yarn about the Heinkels you shot down? Or are you telling the real story now?"

"You shut up!"

"Sure you fought in Spain, if you call it fighting. Heinkels and bombs and machine guns against rifles. Tell us how you mowed 'em down in your Heinkel. Your Heinkel, Joey."

"You lie!" he yelled. "I fought on the Loyalist side!"

I saw Renee fumbling in the shattered cabinet which had held the fat man's arsenal. I said, "The State Department claims you were with the Germans, fighting for Franco. Tell us about it, Joey. Tell us about the Condor Legion. Tell us how you shot Bob Fielding."

Somewhere in the room sounded the telltale dry clack of a rifle being cocked. Joey whirled toward the sound, screaming, "Renee, he can't pin that on me! There were lots of us in the Condor Legion. It could be been anybody. Renee, take it easy! Take—"

He wrenched the Luger out of his pocket. I kicked his elbow a split-second too late. He got off one shot before the automatic spun from his hand. Renee quivered. The rifle she held wavered. Then the barrel came up again, steadied. The shots cracked slowly. Six of them. A click. Joey twitched once on the floor and was still.

Arab cried, "She's hurt, Andy!"

I stumbled toward Renee. She leaned on the desk, jamming a small stained fist into her side. She smiled wistfully and said, "There's a knife on the desk. You'll have to help me open it."

I turned so that she could reach my bound hands without moving. The penknife touched my fingers. I held it while she pried open a blade. Then she took it and sawed through the ropes at my wrists.

"Take care of your wife," she said. "And hurry."

She didn't have to warn me. The smoke was thickening; somewhere in the house flames coiled and rustled like timber rattlers. I slashed the cords around Arab's knees and ankles, sliced the tape linking her wrists. The adhesive binding her fingers into boxing-glove shape would have to wait.

When laundering woollens, be sure to use plenty of soapsuds. It minimizes the rubbing, and therefore preserves the garment longer.

When the family tires of the usual breakfast food, serve big bowls of freshly popped corn with milk or cream, and sugar. It is a swell change.

Book shelves should be cleaned and painted, and books frequently dusted, to prevent the breeding of moths, silverfish, or other book-devouring insects.

You can make dress and apron pockets more sturdy by laying a piece of tape on the underside of the garment in line with the pocket top. Stitch it in with the corners.

When washing men's and boys' overalls lay them on the washboard or any flat surface and scrub them with a scrubbing brush and lots of good suds. It makes washing easier.

GLEAN ANOTHER PHASE OF MILITARY SERVICE IN INTERVIEW WITH MOKENA GI

Another phase of the military service was gleaned in a visit we had recently with ex-T-4 Elsworth McGovney of Mokena, which we are glad to pass on to our readers.

Elsworth, son of Mrs. Amanda McGovney of Mokena, was inducted into service April 10, 1942 and trained until Dec. 6 of that year at Camp Edwards Mass., where he was assigned to the Military Police division and placed in the 707th group. He was sent to Camp Niantis, Conn. which was a training camp for Military Police. At this camp he joined Co. B, and sailed from there Dec. 8th on the Queen Mary. There were between 10 and 12 thousand men aboard. They landed at Scotland Dec. 16 and were sent at once to Richfield, England to the Whittington Barracks.

When the boys landed at the barracks, their spirits sank somewhat, as the buildings were made of stone, about 350 years old, and were damp and dismal. Very small electric light bulbs, occasionally placed, furnished the meager light. The men were glad to be moved from that place after a three weeks stay and went to Burton-on-the-Hill in England. It was a prisoner of war camp No. 1 where 3000 prisoners were who were taken prisoners in the African campaign, and processed thru this camp to the United States. T-4 McGovney stayed at this camp for 3 months and then was transferred to Cheltenham Spa, then being used as an S.O.S. Headquarters for the Army. At this camp Elsworth served as order clerk from April to November 1943.

At this time another transfer took Elsworth to Perham Downs, Tidworth, England where he rejoined his original battalion, the 707th Military Police. And by the way, this was the first M. P. group to land in England from this country. There were about 700 of them. His stay at Perham Downs, lasted from Nov. 1943 to February 1944. Then his next move was to Taunton, England, where their battalion headquarters and also the 19th District Engineers were located. Invading problems were worked out at this camp. While there, Elsworth was with the group who had the honor of escorting Gen. Eisenhower, Prime Minister Winston Churchill, Gen. Montgomery, Gen. Lee who came there to observe the solving of problems and other war necessities.

In June 1944 the 707th M. P.'s were sent to Devonshire and later to Totnes, the latter being a very beautiful place. Here they lived in tents. On July 4th they moved to South Hampton where they stayed in tents, for two more days, then by boat to Omaha Beach, France landing there the next day where they joined the First army. Here they camped for several weeks, living in pup tents, and being just a mile from the front line. They could hear the German's 88's most of the time. Then next to Sherbourg where they stayed for six months and then progressed continually forward into Antwerp, Belgium. While in this area, Elsworth had the good fortune to be given a nine day furlough. This he spent in Paris living at the Sportsmen's Club. During this furlough Elsworth took in all the historical places and buildings in this city that his time would allow.

Cpl. McGovney was one of 100 M. P.'s chosen to go to the Bulge and bring back 2,000 prisoners of war. These M. P.'s only had 5 shells apiece and their carbines and if the prisoners had given them much trouble it would have been a trying position to be in.

VE day found Elsworth at Brussels and he was able to participate in the great celebration. As Brussels was a Leave town, Elsworth was thus able to take in more historical sights and did enjoy the great operas, as most every one in that country does. The admission is very little. He also attended the great symphonies.

Some more short leaves were spent in Luxembourg and Holland. He got into Germany a short distance. Finally he was scheduled to go to Top Hat Camp staying there three days before sailing, Nov. 6, 1945 on the U. S. S. Milford Victory and landed at Newport News, Va. on November 15. There a band played to welcome them home. His next move was to Camp Grant and on November 20 received his honorable discharge.

He wore the ETO ribbon with three bronze stars; the Good Conduct ribbon, Pre-Pearl Harbor ribbon; six overseas stripes, the Meritorious Servicemen's Unit plaque and the ETO Service Force patch and now the "Duck" as the discharged servicemen call the Eagle Emblem.

Elsworth sent and brought home many rare souvenirs among which was a silver tray; some Wedgewood china, lace dollies from Brussels and an original crayon sketch of a town which had since been buzz bombed.

Killing the "Outlet Octopus"

Our hero has the right idea . . . the "Outlet Octopus" has to go . . . but the solution isn't the axe — it's adequate wiring.

Maybe yours is still just a baby Octopus . . . but it'll grow unless your wiring is adequate. Not only are "double plugs on double plugs" unsightly but they are also dangerous. Think of those little wires behind the plug, they just aren't built to carry such a load.

Avoid slow heating and inefficiently operating appliances. Adequate wiring means no more dimming lights . . . no more "Outlet Octopuses." You'll have plenty of convenience outlets . . . and no more "steps in the dark" — multiple switches will light your way ahead.

In your present or future home, plan to have adequate wiring so your new electric appliances will serve you better. Talk over adequate wiring with us or your electrical contractor today.

Mokena Women's Service Club,
Dear Ladies:

Just a note to thank you for your Christmas gift. It was really appreciated and very useful. Thank you very much.

Sincerely yours,

Mokena Women's Service Club,
Dear Madam:

In finally getting settled down after two months of changing homes all the way from Tokyo to Takumatsu here on the island of Shikoku, I want to write and tell you how much I appreciate your kindness in sending the Christmas package and also the check you sent on my birthday. All my buddies want to express their thanks also as they helped to eat it. Knowing that I am over 7,000 miles from home and then getting a package from your home town makes a fellow feel closer to home.

The city that we are occupying has been leveled by incendiary raids—destruction, destruction and complete chaos is at its maximum in this city.

Again I want to express my gratitude for your kind generosity.

Sincerely yours,
Charles L. Sterner.

Off the Runway

Civil Air Patrol, Squadron 613-3
by 2nd Lt. Erlene Conel

Check Points: The P80 Jet Plane beat the former transcontinental record by more than an hour, "shooting" from Long Beach, Cal., to New York, (2,470 miles) in 4 hours, 13 minutes and 26 seconds. Rumor has it that the plane crossed Illinois at approximately 700 MPH. Last week a flying auto was successfully flown. It cruises at 110 miles per hour in the air. On the ground wings and tail structure are "clipped" in five minutes, and you have a coupe to drive home and park in the garage. Not yet ready for market, the manufacturers are trying to produce the versatile craft to sell for $2,500. We dip our wings, saluting the Editor who offers free ad lineage to vets seeking jobs! That's really Rodger!

Birds vs "Eagles" While flying today in a Cub at 1200 feet, I banked sharply to avoid hitting a starling.

Which reminds me that last summer, Doc Kingston and Fred Schrum were flying when a hawk hit and broke their prop. While they were making their successful forced landing, Fred shrugged his shoulders and said in his inimitable dry-droll manner, "Well, we got the bird."

Airport News: While at Rubinkam Sunday, a new Cub flew in, and a modern Miss Moeller daintily stepped out. She'd flown in solo from Denver and was headed for Sky Harbor to visit relatives. In a hurry, she propped her own plane, and whizzed away. Earl Perry, a former AAF Pilot got his Instructor's License from Instructor Weisbruck and is now putting it to good use at Rubinkam. Rubinkam is rumbling with a lot of news that hints of big events for the near future. The new Flying Club is being organized. A new Flight Office and private hangers are going up. Local folks are well represented in the first edition of a new publication, the "Chicago Aviation News". It tells of Helen Budwash installed as chairman of the local chapter of the Ninety Niners, with Ty Barnes Cassidy Vice chairman. It also prints the names of the brothers Wolak "Doc" Kingston, Jack Morton, Roy Cleveland, Ray Starzyk, Norman Neveger, Floyd Ford and Alfredo Santiago!

Flying Take Off. If you'll remember, Candy, the galstudent almost iced up at the airport last week. This week from the look of her, we figured she must have spent her week's salary check for flying togs. At the beginning of her second hour of instruction, her instructor began explaining how to get the plane off the ground and into the air. First, start at the beginning of the runway, remembering that if you have to land, the field back of you won't help.

Second, head the plane into the wind. Then open the throttle gently until the plane begins to move, gradually opening the throttle full. Keep the plane straight by using the rudder pedals. Push the stick forward to get the tail up and the plane into cruising attitude. When the plane gets flying speed, ease back on the stick and the plane will become airborne.

The first time the Cub took off, it was obvious that the instructor was handling the controls. On the second trip, it was equally obvious that Candy had the controls. She had the "cowboy" trouble that betfalls most "dodos" using too much rudder, making the plane zig and zag, before leaving its earthly nest.

After half an hour flying time, Candy got her two feet on the ground and asked how to be sure a plane was in cruising attitude. Her instructor told her line up the nose of a Cub with the horizon. As Candy was getting ready to leave, and was "prettying up" he winked as he said, "Never mind the shine, just remember to 'keep your nose on the line!'"

Romance In the Air: A big airline started low cost coast to coast freight service linking 54 cities. And, there's romance even in freight. For the first shipments from Chicago included wedding veils to Sacramento. Which reminds me those planes above Rubinkam may be robot Cupids, because local flyer Jean Hendricks is wearing a smile that flashes like the ring on her third finger left hand. Congratulations Warren Peterson.

Flying Hoosiers: Friday fourteen farmers, five of them with their wives came avistin' the Big City of Chicago. But instead of coming in wagons, they piloted their own planes. And that's not all, 68 of them "country slickers" are learning to fly off a 20 acre section farm. All this knocks tradition for a loop. Now when grandma says wher's r'y wandering boy tonight, she doesn't put a candle in a window, she sees that the windsock is flying free. And, I predict that with flying so popular, soon the farmer's daughter will be catching up with the traveling salesman!

That's all for now.

Announce Revised Version Of Testament

The new Revised Standard Version of the New Testament, prepared by a group of noted Bible scholars under the authorization of the International Council of Religious Education, went on sale in bookstores throughout the nation on February 11, it was announced by Dr. Luther A. Weigle of Yale University Divinity school, chairman of the revision committee.

In celebration of the completion of this work after eight years of research, study and revision, a colorful service was held as part of the 24th annual meeting of the International Council in Columbus, Ohio.

The first authorized revision of the New Testament in more than 40 years, this is the shortest translation ever made of it. Dr. Weigle pointed out, "The new translation retains all the beauty of the King James version," he stated, "while at the same time it uses the everyday language of Americans today. It is printed in large, clear type on substantial paper, with one chapter leading into another like a continued story. Completion of the new Revised Standard Version of the Old Testament is expected by 1950."

Christianity Or ?

As we look forward to what lies ahead for our harassed world, thoughtful people are becoming increasingly conscious that we must act quickly if we are to prevent the annihilation of civilization. Should such a thing happen, or anything remotely approaching it, mankind's future on this planet will be fraught with grim and terrible uncertainty.

From many pens are coming warnings that now we can no longer fail to deal with mankind's basic problem, man himself. They are reminding us that our technology has far outstripped our capacity to use it wisely and for mankind's own good.

In essence they are saying that we must do two things simultaneously, one, immediately; the other, beginning immediately, but carrying on continuously.

First we must have an effective world organization to which all the peoples of the earth will adhere.

Second we must address ourselves to mankind's spiritual rehabilitation. As the editorial in Fortune Magazine for January 1946 says, "If we are to meet the challenge of atomic fission, we must cure the fission that exists in men's minds and in their hearts. In this sense it appears that the problem is not of mechanical, or even just political, but spiritual and personal."

Arthur H. Compton, Chancellor of Washington University and one of the scientists having most to do with the development of the atomic bomb, puts it in slightly different words, but with the same intent. "International agreements may prevent the early recurrence of a war of unparalleled destructiveness. But the lasting peace the world is seeking can come only as men learn to live in the knowledge of the truths of the Spirit."

If our world is to close what another writer calls "the great gulf—between our engineering and our ethics, between our knowledge and our ways of life," then the puny stream of our giving to make Christianity known and effective must be swollen into a mighty river.

Joseph C. Grew, Assistant Secretary of State, writes, "For this new world of physical power into which we are entering we must offer to others the main stay and discipline of the principles of Christianity or risk future terrible wars of destruction from which mankind may never recover."

The principles of Christianity are contained in a book, the Bible. Some important part of it has been put into the languages of 9-10ths of the human race. But never yet have sufficient funds been supplied to insure its adequate distribution. In its entire 130 years of existence the American Bible Society, the recognized agency of more than 40 denominations, has yet to receive from all sources the equivalent of the cost of a single battleship like the USS Missouri.

Having now spent our billions to secure military victory and a fresh chance to build a new order in which wars will be impossible, we will do well to spend some millions in spreading the book containing the messages which alone will form the basis of that new order if it is to endure.

For the circulating of the Bible in the languages of the people has been and will always remain the spearhead of the Christian movement.

Now, to bring this down to a sharp focus, there comes an opportunity such as Christianity has never had before, and, if it misses now, may never have again. That opportunity concerns the two great aggressor nations of World War II.

In Japan the Emperor Hirohito has renounced his claim to divinity. That means simply that Church and state are now effectively divorced. No longer need there be conflict between a Japanese feeling of patriotism and his religion. The way is clearly open for the Japanese people to receive Christianity as their religion without doing violence to their sense of loyalty to their country.

The repercussions of this event were felt immediately in Japan as evidenced by a letter received shortly after by the American Bible Society. It came from Col. Ivan Bennett, Chief U. S. Army Chaplain in Japan, and reported a conference with Kagawa and other Japanese Christian leaders. They cite the immediate need of sending from this country as the only possible source of supply 100,000 Japanese Bibles and 2 1/2 million Japanese New Testaments.

Such a request, if it to be met, will involve an expenditure of at least $500,000. The American Bible Society as the one agency in this country geared to such a task has already placed orders for 1 million New Testaments and is prepared to undertake the balance, but funds must be provided. Here is a challenge America cannot afford to ignore.

Much the same story can be told of Germany. Reports from chaplains received by the Society indicate a great receptivity on the part of the people, and an eagerness on the part of German pastors to get the books into the hands of the people as an essential part of their spiritual rehabilitation. The American Bible Society has already shipped 48,000 Bibles, 923,000 Testaments and 1,741,000 Gospels, has on the press or scheduled for immediate printing an additional 300,000 Bibles, 600,000 Testaments and 500,000 Gospels and estimates the need of supplying an additional 450,000 Bibles, 1,250,000 Testaments, and 500,000 Gospels.

These two urgent situations take into account the valiant efforts which the Society is making to meet the needs of other war ravaged areas in Europe and the Far East.

It is within the power of Americans of good will to fill the world's moral vacuum with the healing message of the Christian gospel. To fail to do so now may well mean disaster even within our own generation.

Your gifts should be sent to the American Bible Society, 450 Park Ave., New York, 22, N. Y.

Case Nominated For District 10 Director On Pure Milk Board

John P. Case, Naperville, Ill., has been nominated for another two year term on the Pure Milk Association board of directors. He was unanimous choice of District 10 members attending their annual meeting in Lisle, Ill., Feb. 6. Election will be held at the Association's 21st annual meeting in Chicago next month.

Labor strife, the greatest in our history, will have much to do with milk prices for the year ahead, Arthur H. Lauterbach, PMA general manager, told members. Reiterating the Association's stand against government subsidies, he declared that "whoever has power will use subsidy as a weapon, but when subsidies go, farmers must have higher prices.

"Government gave labor its subsidy by way of time and a half, hoping after the war to drop it, just as they hoped to drop milk production subsidies. This is the most critical stage in agriculture history because of the cleavage between the thinking of groups as to the place agriculture is to occupy in our national economy in the years to come. Are we to be perpetually subsidized? It will lead to regimentation and dictatorship."

Alternatives, Lauterbach pointed out, are, on the one hand, a program similar to that of the old Farm Board; on the other, a producer-financed-and-operated agency similar to Dairy Products Marketing Association.

In reviewing 1945 activities of Pure Milk Association, Secretary Charles M. Cosgrove reported that sales of members' milk exceeded $50 million and that membership had increased by several hundred. Mr. Cosgrove analyzed how PMA's co-operatively marketing members' milk in the years ahead.

In a letter addressed to automobile dealers thru out the country, A. O. Dietz, President of C.I.T., disclosed the following rates:

At the same time, Universal C.I.T. made known that it has redesigned its exclusive "Consumers' Protective Package" thru which automobile buyers obtain essential insurance and other services including accident insurance, towing and emergency road service, bail bond, and other protective features, all in one transaction at the same time that they arrange their financing.

Goodbye Foam— In Motor Oil

PITTSBURGH, PA. — Blowing through two straws, this young lady shows how the serious handling of foaming oil has been eliminated in high speed motors. Oil in the beaker at the right, treated by an anti-foam agent developed by Gulf Oil Corp., cannot be made to foam or bubble over. The beaker at the left demonstrates how air can make untreated oil froth out of motors like foamy beer, sometimes causing shutdowns of trucks, tanks, ships, power plants and machinery. Overcoming of the foaming problem, considered serious by various Government agencies, was announced recently.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, February 10, was:

"SPIRIT"

The Golden Text was:
"The Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God." (I Cor. 2:10).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"Am I a God at hand, saith the Lord, and not a God afar off? Can any hide himself in secret places that I shall not see him? saith the Lord. Do not I fill heaven and earth? saith the Lord? . . . No man hath seen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us. Hereby know we that we dwell in him, and he in us, because he hath given us of his Spirit" (Jer. 23: 23, 24; I John 4: 12, 13).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"In the Bible the word Spirit is so commonly applied to Deity, that Spirit and God are often regarded as synonymous terms; and it is thus they are uniformly used and understood in Christian Science. . . . The three great verities of Spirit, omnipotence, omnipresence, omniscience—Spirit possessing all power, filling all space, constituting all Science,—contradict forever the belief that matter can be actual. These eternal verities reveal primeval existence as the radiant reality of God's creation, in which all that He has made is pronounced by His wisdom good." . . . He fills all space, and it is impossible to conceive of such omnipresence and individuality except as infinite Spirit or Mind. Hence all is Spirit and spiritual." (pp. 344, 109, 331).

Ty Cobb was talking about the oddest characters he had ever known about in baseball and he happened to mention a pitcher I dug up for Abner Powell, owner and manager of the Atlanta team, over 40 years ago. I still recall the unfortunate matter, and was sorry Ty brought it up.

For this pitcher was the only incipient star I had ever known who was driven from baseball by a scurvy trick on the part of the opposition. He might have been another Johnson. It happened this way:

Ty Cobb

A country friend of mine had recommended a pitcher named Harry Hale from Happy Hollow, Tenn., population 312. "All this guy has," my pal wrote, "is a fast ball. But he's plenty fast." Well, that was about all Walter Johnson had for some 15 years.

I persuaded Powell to bring Happy Harry Hale from Happy Hollow to Atlanta, at a total cost of $37.50. Walter Johnson cost only a little more.

Happy Harry was 6 feet, 7 inches and weighed 138 pounds. He was the original buggy whip. He really had a fast ball. But he had never heard of a curve or a change of pace, because he had never been out of Happy Hollow before.

"I remember that fellow," Ty said. "He had a lot of speed. I remember the day you got Powell to try him out." I remember it too. For the first four innings of the team, I think it was Shreveport, under Red Fisher, failed to get a scratch hit. Happy Harry from Happy Hollow was having a field day.

"I was a kid then," Ty said, "but I was thinking of what a great judge you were of pitchers. I remembered you'd made Ab Powell bring in Nap Rucker from back of a Georgia plow. I don't have to tell you what later happened to Hale."

New to Harry
Ty was right. Here was another Johnson blazing them by helpless bats. And then in the fifth inning some fiend suggested bunting. And it so happened that Harry Hale had never seen, nor even heard of a bunt. Nobody ever bunted in Happy Hollow. They were all swingers.

He let the first bunt go, much after the manner of watching a Tennessee moccasin or a Georgia rattlesnake crawling his way. He ignored the second bunt. He finally picked up the third bunt and threw it into the stands over first.

"But the big pay-off," Ty said, "was the fourth bunt. Now Happy Harry was desperate. As he tried to field the fourth bunt he spiked himself in the right hand, requiring five stitches later, plus a return ticket to Happy Hollow. You know, there might have been another Walter Johnson if only some one in Happy Hollow had ever bunted. For he had that fast one—and it was fast."

"Anyway," Cobb concluded, "Harry Hale remains my favorite ball player."

This yarn about Happy Harry Hale from Happy Hollow may sound like a pipe dream. But it had an amazing aftermath.

"Back around 1907," Ty Cobb told me, "we were playing Washington. We ran into another tall lanky pitcher who wasn't as tall and thin as Harry Hale, but he was even faster. His name was Walter Johnson and he had just blown in from Weiser, Idaho, or Humboldt, Kans., or some place like that. I think it was from Weiser. Anyway, he had that fast one, and we couldn't foul him."

"So I remembered your pal, Harry Hale and it occurred to several of us on the Detroit team that maybe Weiser had never heard of the bunt. Hale gave us the idea."

Bunt Strategy
"So we started bunting. And Walter started throwing those bunts around. I happened to be a part of that bunting attack, so I know what happened. You may recall that with all his speed, Johnson only won five games that year for Washington, while he lost nine. He had another bad year in 1908 and also in 1909."

"Of course, he had a bad ball club. But if it hadn't been for the Harry Hale you dug up from Happy Hollow several years before, Walter might have made a much better start. The old bunt is still useful, especially if you've seen or heard of one before."

And so, if you want a moral, it's how the unknown, unsung kid of more than 40 years ago could affect the career of the great Johnson, still the top of them all.

It was Hale — and farewell — for Happy Harry. It was hail — and fame for Johnson.

No, he never quite had the amazing artistry of Hal Chase or the power and durability of Lou Gehrig. But he was still a star first baseman, better than a .400 hitter before sinus trouble struck him down. He was fast enough to steal 50 or more bases a season.

Proper Handling of Insecticides Urged

Best Safety Methods Suggested to Farmers

Simple rules for handling of insecticides include:

Take extra precautions in handling and using the more poisonous insecticides, such as the arsenicals and fluorine compounds.

Do not keep insecticides where foods are stored, and see that they are properly marked.

When mixing or applying, take extreme care to keep ingredients out of the mouth and eyes.

Keep the body well covered. Do not spray or dust with legs or arms and shoulders bared.

Heavy gloves and goggles are part of safety spraying program.

Burn empty bags which contained insecticide materials.

Guard against leaving residues of insecticides on harvested product.

Most of the insect controls are not good for humans or for farm animals, and some are dangerous. Precautions must be taken in using them, in order to get the best results with maximum safety.

Improved Equipment Water Heater

A portable water heater will be a welcome addition to the farm.

A new portable electric water heater, which needs no water pipe to feed it, has just been announced by Rheem Manufacturing company, San Francisco. It is designed for farms where there is limited or no plumbing.

The new unit can be moved around at will. All it needs is an electric outlet near by. It holds 17 gallons and has automatic control. It can be connected to a water pipe and thereby converted into an automatic heater if plumbing is installed.

Ultraviolet Rays

Bacteria Killer

Invisible bactericidal rays sprayed by a new U-shape ultra-violet lamp can reduce the bacteria count in washed milk cans 96 per cent in one minute, according to a recent Westinghouse research report.

The tests were conducted under conditions of contamination more extreme than ever would be encountered in normal service. The unit consumes less electricity than a 25-watt electric light bulb, and should prove of real value in the milk house and dairy plants. Milk cans, although thoroughly cleaned, often pick up infectious organisms from rinse water and air.

This bactericidal rays lamp can be used in many ways about the dairy. Its main purpose is to kill the bacteria in the milk cans. By proper use of the lamp the quality of the milk can be raised and maintained. The cost of operation is very little and its effectiveness great.

Ragweed Injures Peas

Ragweed fragments in contact with peas in lug boxes after vining, has been proven to have an unfavorable effect on the flavor of the peas. They also have an unpleasant odor effect on the peas.

Mayweed, or dog fennel, has also been found to affect the flavor of the peas. However, this weed does not appear to be common to pea fields, being found largely near barnyards. Thus the anathema to hayfever sufferers has another sin.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veterans and servicemen and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

When Will Vets Return?

The Washington office of Western Newspaper Union has received scores of letters from parents, wives, sweethearts and friends of men in service, all asking when their loved ones will get out of the service. We cannot answer these letters with any degree of accuracy because there is no way of ascertaining when men with a given number of points in a given theatre will be released. There are too many circumstances which must be considered in any particular area.

Here, however, is the promise of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, made in his recent address before a joint session of congress January 15, as regards enlisted men:

"By April 30, 1946, all enlisted men, except volunteers, with 45 points as of September 2, 1945, or with 30 months' service as of April 20, 1946, will be separated from the army or aboard ship returning home."

"By June 30, 1946, all enlisted men, except volunteers, with 40 points as of September 2, 1945, or with 24 months' service as of June 30, 1946, will be separated from the army or aboard ship returning home."

General "Ike" further said that whether this rate of discharge can be maintained depends directly upon the rate of replacements or inflow into the army. So this commitment is limited to July 1, 1946.

Questions and Answers

Q. I am a widow of World War II with one child. I drew an allotment for myself and baby until he was killed in action in the navy. His insurance was made to his parents and neither the baby or I was mentioned in the papers. Now his parents are drawing this. Is there any way for me to get this or any part of the insurance?—Mrs. O. M. C., Crossville, Ala.

A. There is no way for you to obtain this insurance if you were not named as beneficiary, unless parents of the serviceman are willing to share with you. You, however, are entitled to a pension for yourself and baby.

Q. Would it be possible for a veteran's widow who is receiving a Spanish American war pension of $30 per month, to exchange it for a World War pension to which she is also entitled? How would she go about making the exchange?—B. M. D., Elk Mills, Md.

A. Yes, the veterans' administration says it is possible. Consult your nearest regional veterans' administration office, probably at Richmond or Baltimore.

Q. We had a nephew who was in the army in the Philippines when war was declared. He was taken prisoner and died in a Jap prison camp in July, 1942. He did not carry insurance. His mother is a widow and is she entitled to receive any compensation? The boy's father was a World War I veteran and died in 1930.—His Aunt, Watsontown, Pa.

A. I would say that the widowed mother, if she was dependent upon the veteran, is entitled to a pension. However, she should file a claim with the nearest office of the veterans' administration, probably at Philadelphia or Pittsburgh, and they will determine her eligibility.

Q. My son has been discharged from the army. He entered service February, 1941. Is he entitled to the pre-Pearl Harbor ribbon? He was entitled to three bronze stars, but only one was shown in his discharge. Is there some way this can be put on his discharge and where can I obtain the information?—Mrs. W. M. J., Purvis, Miss.

A. For answers to both questions write to the office of the adjutant general, enlisted personnel, war department, Washington, D. C.

Q. My husband has one child and has been in the marines since August, 1943, and overseas since June 1, 1945. How many points does he have? He is in Peiping, China. When can I expect him home?—Mrs. D. H. S., Lewisburg, Pa.

A. As of September 2, your husband has 38 points. He is not likely to be home soon since the marines are screening all low point men and regulars out of units scheduled to return home soon. Fifty points are necessary for discharge.

Q. I have had three years in the army. Received my honorable discharge in the fall and put in a claim for trouble with my ankle, also tonsils. Received my notice for examination in December, x-rays, etc. As yet I haven't heard from them. Am I eligible for a disability pension?—D. H. W., Salisbury, Md.

A. It may take several weeks for the veterans' administration to catch up with your claim. They will eventually, however. There is a shortage of manpower in all veterans' administration offices. Keep writing or calling the office where you filed.

Creating a Modern Air in Living Room

HOUSES of glass are realities today and, if you want to give any house a modern air, try to make the windows seem important. One way is to frame them in a group by covering the wall and leaving the glass exposed.

An inexpensive chintz with grey-green ground and a flower pattern is used for draperies and to trim the couch cover of heavier grey-green cotton material which is also used for the cushions. The glass curtains are hung on rods suspended from the picture moulding with picture wire and hooks. The side drapes are unlined but the valance is made over buckram. Both are tacked to pine strips and are hung with picture hooks. One end of the book shelves is closed in to make a head for the couch. The outside is painted grey-green and the inside dark green. The parchment lamp shade has green bindings.

On a train going from one cotton picking job to another a couple of colored boys were talking politics. Rastus, who wanted to see one of the local incumbents re-elected, was giving his friend, Sam, a red hot sales talk on his favorite candidate.

"Well," Sam agreed after listening for some time, "ah guess he's all right — but ah sho don't like his platform."

"Platform!" snorted Rastus. "Platfo'm! Say, don't you know dat a political platfo'm is jes like a platfo'm on one of dese yere railroad cabs—hit ain't meant to stand on, hit's jes meant to git in on."
